Agenda

Friday, November 9, 2018
Concurrent Session Options

Session 1: 8:45 a.m.-10:00 a.m.

Organizing Adults:
It's Teams, Not Individuals

Linda Muskauski
Dr. Richard Lofton

Exhibit Hall A

In this session, we will consider ways we might organize adults differently to shift the context and day-to-day experience of students and teachers. Evidence-based practices and structures, such as innovative schedules, distributive leadership, and collaborative teams, are opportunities to maximize staff capacities to provide a hopeful and effective experience for high school students.

Session 2: 10:15 a.m.-11:30 a.m.

Students at the Center: Hope, Agency, Trust, and Relationships

Dr. Richard Lofton
Maria Waltemeyer

Exhibit Hall A

In this session, we will explore how our High School Redesign might provide spaces where students feel celebrated and a sense of belonging. Evidence-based practices and structures to support moving away from deficit thinking and support student resiliency and agency will be presented.

Session 3: 1:00 p.m.-2:15 p.m.

Teaching and Learning: Supported, Engaged, and Challenged

Maria Waltemeyer
Dr. Richard Lofton

Exhibit Hall A

This session will focus building adult capacity in schools and communities to create environments that challenge students to achieve at high levels with care and support. It will look at evidence from learning sciences to support competency-based learning, professional learning communities, and instructional coaching to align standards, instruction, assessment, and approach.
