Using ESSA to Redesign High Schools to Support Their Communities in the 21st Century

- Hopeful, positive, future-orientated frame to design high schools for the 21st century rather than being seen as failed schools in need of reform
- Goal is not a high school diploma but strong pathways through high school to postsecondary and adult success for all students
- Evidence-based, but locally customized/orientated-not one way for all
- Address stress and scarcity through capacity building and technical assistance partners tightly aligned to community redesign vision and goals
- Break social isolation via school networks facing similar challenges, provide opportunity for school leaders to travel to see other possibilities
- In high-needs communities make redesigned high school the center of community economic development and social integration efforts

Global Guiding Questions

How might we create a school where we all want to be?

• A school with stronger outcomes? A school that is filled with joy? A school that is hopeful?

How might we come to a common understanding of our shared opportunities and challenges?

• How might we recognize our students as a community resource?

How might we best utilize the different strengths of adults and students in the school?

- How might we increase human resources in creative and low cost ways?
- · How might we creatively involve our community in the process?

How might we create an environment where we are one with a sense of belonging given the context we are in?

- How might we build on the relationship strengths of adults and students?
- Share a time when your school environment made you and others in the school feel a strong sense of belonging?

How will our school culture support redesign opportunities?

• Where will we build in time and places for continuous reflection?

How to embrace the conflict and ambiguity which is inherent in change?

Who Are We Designing For? Community Feedback on Redesign

Students, parents, educators, partners, and community members are all vital components to the high school redesign. Each will provide relevant, meaningful experiences, and contribute to the success of both the graduates and community.

An engaged community process may use a variety of approaches to better understand community desires, values, beliefs and gather input.

- Design Charettes
- Conversation Cafes
- · Resident-Driven Community Development
- Student Voice & Choice
- Quick Ways to Get Started
- Study Circles

The Community Input into School Redesign page on the Cross States High School Redesign website offers a wide array of resources on engaging community input. Click here to visit the Community Input into School Redesign website.

Guiding Redesign Questions

- How might we build on the current strengths and talents of our staff?
- How might we develop strong relationships between teachers and between teachers and administrators?
- How might we support the ongoing development of teachers?
- How might we create a culture of data-driven decision making and make the data needed for sound decisions widely available?
- How might we ensure teachers and others have time to plan collaboratively?
- How might we form interdisciplinary teams of adults?
- How might we create a school master schedule that supports our redesign and enables the implementation of evidence-based practices in organizing adults, supporting students, teaching and learning and postsecondary pathways?

POSTSECONDARY PATHWAYS

Guiding Redesign Questions

- How might we create opportunities for work-based learning, job shadowing, and internships at the scale needed?
- How might we assess student competencies?
- How might we support ongoing college and career planning programming that starts in freshman year, including family awareness/communication, and college admissions counseling?
- How might we think about career pathways and personalized postsecondary journeys for students?
- How might we incorporate student/family voice and choice in postsecondary planning?
- How might we provide rich universal school experiences (electives, extra-curricular activities, etc.) for all students?
